Epitome of the Message

The following synopsis of the President's Message was telegraphed from the East to the Sacramento Union. It is somewhat fuller than the summary of the Message which was telegraphed to the World. We will be able to say when we will get the full document in full. It has not yet been received in California. The Message opens as follows:

"To express gratitude to God, in the name of the people for the preservation of the United States is my first duty in addressing you. Our thoughts next revert to the death of the late President by the hands of an assassin. The grief of the nation is still fresh. It finds some solace in the recollection that he lived to enjoy the high proof future confidence in, and an renewal of a term of the Chief Magistracy to which he had been elected; that he began the task when success gratified his desire, and that his loss was hallowed to the country by the incidents of his life and death. The circumstances of his election were highly favorable to his efficiency as a pacificator. His course toward the vanquished met the support and confidence of all who were associated with me in the supreme duty of the reestablishment of the constitutional authority throughout the entire people. There is but one way by which I can hope to gain their necessary aid, it is to state with frankness the principles which guide my conduct and their application to the present state of affairs. The message then discusses the powers of the Constitution of the United States and the relations of the States of the Union. "It is not the right of State Government to renounce its own place in the Union or to nullify the laws of the Union. The largest liberty must be maintained in the discussion of the acts of the General Government, but there is no equality of rights except in the exercise of rights under the Government to itself, or to the people. The sovereignty of the States is the language of the Confederacy, and not the language of the Constitution."

Again he says: "The true theory is, that all the pretended acts of secession were from the beginning null and void. States cannot commit treason nor screen individual citizens who may have committed treason. States attempting to secede placed themselves in a condition where their vitality was impaired, not extinguished, their functions suspended, not destroyed. But if any State neglects or refuses to perform its offices there is the more reason that the General Government should maintain all its authority and use such as practicable to resume the exercise of all its functions. On this principal I have acted and sought to restore the rightful energy of the General Government and of the States. To that end Provisional Governors have been appointed for the States, Conventions called to reorganize, elected Legislatures assembled, and Representatives and Senators chosen to the Congress of the United States. I know very well that this policy was attended with some risk; that for its success it requires the acquiescence of all the States which it concerns, that it implies an immediate restoration of these States by renewing allegiance to the United States to resume their functions as States of the Union; but it is a risk that must be taken. No State can throw a defense over treason. They were in pardon is exclusively vested in the Executive branch of the Government of the United States. In exercising this power I have taken every precaution to connect with the clearest recognition of the binding force of the laws of the United States, and the an qualified acknowledgment of the great change of condition in regard to slavery, which has grown out of the war." And he says:

"All parties to this late terrible conflict must work together in harmony. It is not too much to ask, in the name of the whole people, that on one side the plan of restoration shall proceed in conformity with a willingness to cast the disorders of the past into oblivion, and on the other, that the evidence of sincerity on the future maintenance of the Union, shall be put beyond any doubt, by the ratification of the proposed amendment to the Constitution, which provides for the abolition of slavery forever within the limits of our country. The adoption of the amendment unites the United States beyond all power of disruption."

"It is manifest that treason, most flagrant in character, has been committed. Persons who are charged with its commission should have fair and impartial trials in the highest civil tribunals of the country, in order that the Constitution and the laws may be fully vindicated, and the truth clearly established and affirmed that treason is a crime, that traitors should be punished and the offense made infamous, and at the same time that the question may be judicially settled finally and forever that no State of its own will, has the right to renounce its place in the Union."

The relations of the General Government toward four million inhabitants whom the war has called into freedom, have engaged the serious attention of the President. "In regard to the property of attempting to make the freedmen electors by the proclamation of the President, it took from the control of the Constitution itself, the interpretation of that instrument by the authorities and competent courts and recent legislation by Congress." The President thinks granting the elective franchise to the

SPECIAL PAPER OF THE STATE

WEDNESDAY MORNING DEC 20, 1865.

No Punishment for Treason

The patriotism of President Johnson will be universally admirable Five years ago he stood up in the Senate of the United States and denounced Jeff Davis Toombs and their fellow conspirators as traitors deserving to receive a speedy trial and to be visited with the penalty which is prescribed for treason A review of his course from that day to this will dispel all doubts—if such doubts have ever been entertained about the honesty of his purposes and the sincerity of his patriotism Candid men have no apprehensions regarding his loyalty They do not question the goodness of his intentions The attempt to impeach his patriotism as some have done provokes derision and excites contempt instead than calling for serious refutation But there are certain features of his policy which we regard as great and even as dangerous mistakes The chief of these are his failure to insist on and compel a proper treatment of the freedmen at the hands of the rebels of the South, his action in permitting those who distinguished themselves in the war against the Union to resume control of Southern politics his course in relation to the arming of the militia of the disloyal States and the disarming of the blacks, thus keeping them still at the mercy of their old oppressors, and his precipitancy—we cannot use a milder term—in granting pardon to those who both by their conduct in inciting the rebellion and by the earnestness and ferocity with which they urged on the war, deserve no other fate than speedy death If it appears as if the President, in his great anxiety to prove that the States never have been out of the Union, has been willing to restore them to the exercise of their functions without the necessary precaution of having them reclaimed by the interests and under the auspices of loyal men We think it evident that the State governments ought not to have been reëstablished until there were some manifestations of a revival of loyalty. The fault of the plan is that there has been too much haste to put the revolted States in a position which while their citizens are unpurged of treason, they are not qualified to hold But this is not the whole fault. In order to carry out his plan, the Executive has been compelled to distribute pardons as a free gift among that class who are least entitled to receive them These favors have fallen from an unsparing hand; nearly all the chiefs of the rebellion have been pardoned, and so far has clemency been carried, that the Government cannot now consistently put any one on trial for treason much less pronounce punishment upon any one for the crime. Why should Jeff Davis, C C Clay, or any other person be tried for his life, now that hundreds of others, equally as conspicuous as rebels, and not a whit less guilty, have been released and restored to the rights of citizenship? This is a question which people both North and South will ask, and not without reason The too frequent use of the Executive prerogative of pardon has placed the Government in the dilemma of having to release Jeff Davis, or of making him suffer for crimes in the perpetration of which others were principals, the same as he.

Still, it appears that the President, only a short time ago, was anxious to have Davis tried for treason. In a letter written last October to Chief Justice Chase he remarked that it might be necessary to prosecute some high crimes and misdemeanors committed against the United States within the District of Virginia, and inquired whether trial of such cases could be had before the United States Circuit Court for the District of that State. The Chief Justice replied that a civil Court could at present act only under sanction of the military authorities, and that until the superseding of the military by the civil administration, or until Congress could consider and act upon the subject, he would be unwilling to hold such Courts in the revolted States. It is well known that the Chief Justice totally disagrees with the President as to the status of the States recently in rebellion. Many have asserted that his disinclination to have United States Courts held in Virginia proceeds from this difference between the views of himself and those of the President Whether this is so or not, every one must know that it would be the merest mockery of justice to put Jeff Davis on trial by a jury of his associates in the rebellion, all of whom have committed the very crime of which Davis is accused. No Richmond jury would bring in a verdict of guilty, against Jeff Davis, any more than they would pronounce the like against the presiding judge. It were better far to release the culprit, giving the world to understand that the Government does this as an act of special grace and clemency, than to have him go through the form of a trial, with the certainty of final acquittment. The best and most effectual mode of punishment that could have been devised for the leaders of the rebellion would have been for Congress to have enacted a law placing them under civil disabilities for the rest of their lives. This would have satisfied the country and given assurances of future peace All rebel officers who have committed acts in violation of the laws of war, should have been tried by Military Commissions, and if found guilty, executed This would have included Davis himself, as he is proven to have encouraged the plots to burn Northern cities starve our prisoners and introduce pestilence into the country

The country is becoming accustomed to the idea of having everybody pardoned, and however much the people may wish it to be otherwise, it seems very improbable that any one will be capitally punished for treason From the beginning, Southern rebels have insisted that their conduct was not treasonable, and there is danger of the nation giving its assent to the assertion Months ago influential journals at the East said that if there was now to be no punishment for treason let the clause in the Constitution which defines this offence be expunged, and the laws made in conformity with it, repealed Certainly, it looks now as if there was no such thing possible as treason against the Government, since it is coming to be understood that no penalty attaches when men commit acts such as the people in their patriotic simplicity and in their honest hatred of traitors, had believed to be crimes

THE ROYAL RAILROAD OVER THE SIERRA NEVADA —A petition will be presented to the next Nevada Legislature for its action in behalf of the proposed railway from Nevada to San Francisco by way of what is known as the Placerville route The petitioners say that the Placerville and Sacramento Valley Railroad, connecting with the Sacramento Valley Railroad at Folsom is already built to Shingle Springs and, it is believed will be completed to Placerville early in the ensuing spring, that a company known as the San Francisco and Washoe Railroad Company for the purpose of constructing a railroad from Placerville to the east State of Nevada is fully organized, and have caused an accurate survey of their route to be made and the line located, which was found to be in every respect feasible and practicable.—California Paper

A BAD MAN —The New York Daily News has the following good thing from its Baltimore correspondent, a bitter secessionist

While General Joe Johnston was in Baltimore recently a young gentleman of this city, who had known the General before the war, renewed his acquaintance on the street with the remark, "General I regret that we were obliged to whip you" overwhelming numbers but I rejoice that we are not whipped!" "You have had no active participation in the fighting I believe?" "No, sir" "Under those circumstances," rejoined the veteran, "you are not whipped, but I am."

THE CHARLES CHRISTMAS.—The streets and stores are in indication of the Christmas season which is now to dawn. The quality of edibles to be [illegible] and the respective prices of beef, bulls, pop guns, [illegible] and drums, are being discussed by [illegible] and mothers, all to-day and [illegible] The [illegible] in the store is also as tempting as can well be [illegible] with the fact that butter, [illegible] and only needs to be warmed upon [illegible] Sidney's awful murder [illegible] expense [illegible] all sorts of handsome meats, to be [illegible] upon every other. The whole feathered tribe which has [illegible] by yards, has found that the attentions [illegible] upon them in the matter of corn and meal [illegible] gentleness, and that in eating lullily and grow[illegible] They had worked out their own destruction and [illegible] store. If turkeys could think would they not [illegible] themselves to [illegible] this life, and [illegible] out their existence by sedulously pursuing [illegible] starvation? Geese, too, abounds in the [illegible] Ducks from the delicate little Butter fellow to [illegible] Holland and Canvas-back which go whistling [illegible] marshes; geese that yielded to the seductive [illegible] and ventured within range of the [illegible] are by concealed; quail, those invariably [illegible] and moorhen, and the snipe with his [illegible] and yellow legs—all these have fallen [illegible] the grand larder which is organized about the [illegible] all over the country. Fish that swim have [illegible] as well as birds that fly. Sturgeon and other [illegible] enough to fill all the stockings in the land, [illegible] on fishmongers' tables ready to throw [illegible] into the balances. In short, we have [illegible] to every description of game, from venison [illegible] for the holidays, which will overwhelm the [illegible] having to make game of one's fellows, as was [illegible] of the ancients, about Christmas.

THEATRICALS.—Messrs Sutton & Co. have come [illegible] generals for opening in this city a [illegible] large scale. They have leased that portion of [illegible] south of Alder street, and will very shortly [illegible] it in that locality worthy of mention. [illegible] Eastwood lumber, of the very best quality; [illegible] here by the 1st of February, and they have [illegible] erected for the whole amount of lumber needed [illegible] which is now being placed under cover at [illegible] By a drying process entirely new with [illegible] what on the process of superheated [illegible] a new plan of application without pressure, [illegible] together with what is said to be [illegible] of houses, etc. Mr. Sutton is a practical [illegible] will also to convert in Portland one [illegible] special branches of business. Success to [illegible] We intend in the course of a few days to [illegible] to this matter, and show an estimate of the [illegible] for this city, and the amount likely to [illegible]

[illegible]—This dull and monotonous place was yes[illegible] roused to a busy, dashing, and live city, by [illegible] night previous, which brought into [illegible] of hot horses, fine cutters and sleighs [illegible] sidewalks last long, and is very probable to [illegible] of the weather," it not regulated by [illegible] lots. Could we have snow during [illegible] of navigation it would serve to make [illegible] within the city. The roads could then [illegible] farmers would come to town—[illegible] flourish, and a handsome trade [illegible] the counters of our merchants, but that [illegible] of the weather," it not regulated by [illegible] 1st and dole according to the distance [illegible] At the solicitation of a friend who [illegible] of grays, we seated by his side and [illegible] for the purpose of realizing just how [illegible] was in the snow that had fallen. The [illegible] just so far as the snow covered the [illegible], but was too thin to warrant a trip to [illegible] the application of as much more as [illegible] ground yesterday would make extra fine [illegible]

[illegible].—In recorder's court yesterday Tom [illegible] guilty of stealing the purse of Kate [illegible] Saloon, while it was being used by [illegible]. The purse contained $45, and Tom [illegible] sent to the next term of the Cir[illegible] Hassel, for knocking down the [illegible] paid a fine of $50 and costs.....On coun[illegible] Boyd, John Doherty was arrested on a [illegible] when armed with a dangerous weapon; [illegible] fined at the fire alarm at the Lincoln [illegible] recently claimed that he did it to resist an [illegible] of his wife by Boyd. No evidence of the [illegible] and on motion of the attorney for the [illegible] "when armed with a dangerous weapon" [illegible] from the complaint, as the pistol [illegible] would not be considered a "dangerous" [illegible] Kneal guilty of assault, and paid a [illegible] costs.

[illegible] Out.—Among the fine rigs on the [illegible] there could be none in this country [illegible] than the team and cutter driven by Mr. [illegible] were matched and spirited, and the [illegible] the finest Rubb, from the shop of W. F. [illegible] built by Messrs. Berdsen & Elliott, of this [illegible] country where there is a long winter and [illegible] sleighing, such a cutter as this one is seldom [illegible] beauty. Mr. Berdsen proposes to give some [illegible] an opportunity to purchase this cutter [illegible] The lowest possible price that could be [illegible] Such, but by raffle it will be disposed of at [illegible] Ben advertisement, then go and win the [illegible] in luck.

[illegible] theatrical troupe under the [illegible] Ward, whom it will be seen, by a [illegible] qualifications deemed essential for [illegible] commence a short season at Willamette [illegible] Friday night. A splendid bill will be of[illegible] Ward's entertainment, with the usual [illegible] remain certain that the company will do [illegible] every effort to entertain the audience. [illegible] performances will be found a list of the gentle[illegible] composing this company.

[illegible].—The snow and ice at this place of [illegible] very spotted, yesterday, with furs, [illegible] hand sleighs, &c. A large number of [illegible] horses, old and young, were there enjoying [illegible] and sliding. East Portland, also, [illegible] at skating park, and South of the city [illegible] very attractive locality for skating and [illegible]

[illegible] Boat.—The new ferry boat, lately in [illegible] at Stark street, for crossing the river at [illegible] more than half completed, at the Wil[illegible] he, and will soon be plying in the line [illegible] beauty and reliable assistance of friends.

[illegible]ton Lodge No. 4, held at Various [illegible] the following named gentlemen for the [illegible] year: W. H. Troup, W. M.; R. V. [illegible] J. Davidson, J. W.; G. Burgess, [illegible] Hapsler, Secretary; C. Brown, S. D.; [illegible] P.; S. B. Carlile, Tyler.

[illegible] A fair condition of everything [illegible] movement as noiseless as thunder. The [illegible] especially for the Oneonta on his return [illegible] front street, whose circularity may be ac[illegible] of jokes and hearty laughing. Accord[illegible] we rarely say of respectable persons there [illegible] the gayety of our friend concedes the point [illegible]

[illegible].—The steamer Oneonta, Capt. Wilb[illegible] at noon yesterday, taking about 1,500 [illegible] for the California steamer, and a light [illegible] for Wells, Fargo & Co.

[illegible] Theatre.—There will be an attractive co[illegible] given this evening at Willamette Theatre. [illegible] particulars, see advertisement and program[illegible]

[illegible] were employed yesterday hauling ice to [illegible] summer months. Now is an excellent time [illegible] the long drinks.

[illegible] Active, Capt. Thorn, will leave to-morrow [illegible]

THE TABLES.—The principle in inter[illegible] law which Great Britain has attempted [illegible] that neutrals may not only protect a [illegible] but give him the use of their harbors [illegible] expeditions against his enemy, is likely [illegible] right home to that country in such a way [illegible] be readily understood. Of all nations, [illegible] in the one to which such a principle, [illegible], would work the most damage. [illegible] not herself in such a position that [illegible] must be maintained, or she must pay [illegible] for indemnity. The last, she has [illegible] refused to do; if she abides by the [illegible] establishes a precedent that will even[illegible] her commercial interests more hurt than [illegible] would now receive were she to recede [illegible] position and pay us in full for our losses [illegible] The Liverpool Times looks at this [illegible] wisely turning an eye also to the future, [illegible]

[illegible] such a thing as a penny-wise and [illegible] economy even in statesmanship, and [illegible] possible that, to avoid the payment of a [illegible] thousands or a million of money, we [illegible] our opposition on a principle so untrue [illegible] cause as when the cases are reversed [illegible] Nations are neurals and we are bel[illegible] to suffer terribly in person and pocket [illegible] borne in mind that there is such a [illegible] argument cutting both ways, and [illegible] players are sometimes said to be in the [illegible] too much. We must avoid this [illegible] the claims of the Americans relative to [illegible] of the Alabama and her sister clon[illegible] are a mere bagatelle compared with [illegible] which it is in store for the maritime [illegible] of Great Britain unless this dispute is [illegible] and harmony with international [illegible] apprehend war, for war in [illegible] could not arise out of this business [illegible] as bad may arise in the fu[illegible] example we have set, and the [illegible] ended, may be turned against [illegible] that is hideous even to surmise.

The Flutter in Europe.

The news which comes from Europe these days shows that France and England are in a continual flutter because of the unsatisfactoriness of their relations with the United States. Both of these powers had counted upon the disintegration of this country, and half shaped their course accordingly. Now, however, they find that the United States comes out of the struggle stronger than ever, and that they have put themselves in a position in which they cannot remain, without a war with the strongest power in the world, and from which they cannot withdraw without seriously compromising their dignity, and lowering their pride. Every breath that comes from America is felt in Paris and London, and every incident which transpires here and which is construed as in any way relating to our foreign policy, is dwelt upon by the English and French journals with a degree of interest never before exhibited. We find all England and all France exhausting their ingenuity in the effort to discover the reason and import of so simple an incident as the visit of General Schofield to Europe. Evidently there is some uneasiness in those countries. Those two powers have suddenly awakened to a realization of our importance, and of the predicament in which they have placed themselves. A while ago they put away all fear of the United States, trusted us with injustice and contempt and disported at pleasure without regard for our rights, but now they stand in dread of the day of reckoning and are thrown into mortal fear by the least whisper that the United States may make an unconditional demand for the abandonment of Mexico or for payment for the property our people lost by English-rebel cruisers. Homer says that all Olympus shook at the nod of Jove; from the flutter across the water it would appear as if the least manifestation of displeasure on the part of the United States toward England and France, has power to put two empires in a state of agitation and alarm.

JACOB THOMPSON.—The following is from the New York Evening Post:

The Mississippi Legislature, it seems, ask for the pardon of Jacob Thompson.

Jacob Thompson, in 1860, convicted of the Indian bond frauds by which the Government lost a great sum of money and had its credit impaired at a critical moment. He was one of the original conspirators, and was as active and as treacherous in the Cabinet of Buchanan as John B. Floyd. Later, he went to Canada, where he superintended the fitting out of expeditions to burn down our border towns and kill unarmed citizens. He was Blackburn's confident in the infamous attempt to introduce yellow fever into Washington and into our camps by infected clothing. He was the associate of those who plotted the assassination of Lincoln and the heads of the Government. He did his best—while keeping his own skin whole—to prolong the war, to embroil us in foreign war, and to stir up sedition and violence to the Northern States.

This person had no business in the United States; he is in every way infamous; and the Mississippi Legislature very far forgets itself when it asks for pardon for him. We have seen a letter from Thompson to his wife, written in 1862, in which he tells her that he had sent from Mobile some cotton for investment abroad, so that "in case of the worst" he should not be unprovided for. Let him go abroad then, and live upon the profits of these speculations to sultan in which he was engaged while the people of his State were suffering and dying in the strife to which he had stirred them up. The people of those States are very patient and long suffering, but they will scarcely endure to see such a wretch as Thompson walking amongst them as though he were an honest and honorable man.

YANKEES TAKE BULL RUN.—Northern men are investing largely in Virginia lands, especially in the country between Washington and Richmond, which has been devastated during four years by contending armies. Valuable farms, where an outlay of cash for fences and buildings is needed, are disposed of by their former owners at very low figures. Any man with national currency at his command can provide himself with a home in the Old Dominion quite as cheap as the same would cost in the far West. At Manassas Junction sixteen new buildings are in process of erection, a pretentious hotel among them. The majority of the new settlers in the Bull Run neighborhood are enterprising Yankees.

So long ago as 1850, Jefferson Davis asked Henry Clay, in the Senate if he did not hold himself primarily bound to obey his State, and was promptly answered, "No, sir, I owe a paramount allegiance to the Union: I owe a subordinate allegiance to the State of Kentucky."

On the 6th inst. the lower house of the California Legislature, by a vote of 44 to 9, passed the resolution adopting the Constitutional amendment abolishing slavery.

To HEADS OF FAMILIES.—Are your little ones subject to Croup? If so don't fail to use Newell's Pulmonary Syrup. A few doses given in time may save the life of a darling child. Don't fail to have it on hand, if you would be safe and free from anxiety.

HOW SUFFRAGE IS SUCCESS.—Now that slavery in the United States is destroyed, Earl Russell professes to rejoice. But it happens that the emancipation proclamation was the instrumentality of its destruction. Mr. Adams reminds us and the British Government how the latter received that document originally, by his most pointedly sarcastic reference to the following official letter from Downing street to Lord Lyons, then British Minister at Washington.

FOREIGN OFFICE, January 18, 1863.

My Lord.—The Proclamation of the President of the United States, the need in your Lordship's despatch of the 5th inst., appears to be of a very strange nature. It professes to emancipate all slaves in places where the United States authorities cannot exercise any jurisdiction nor make emancipation a reality, but it does not decree emancipation of slaves in any States or parts of States occupied by Federal troops, and subject to Federal jurisdiction, and where, therefore, emancipation, if decreed, might have been carried into effect.

It would seem to follow that in the border States, and also in New Orleans, a slave owner may recover his slave by the ordinary process of law; but that in ten-ten States in which the proclamation decrees emancipation, a fugitive slave arrested by legal warrant may resist, and his resistance, if successful, is to be upheld and aided by the United States authorities and the United States armed forces.

The proclamation, therefore, makes slavery at once legal and illegal, and makes slaves either punishable for running away from their masters, or entitled to be supported and encouraged in so doing, according to the loyalty of the population to which they belong and the loyalty of the State in which they may happen to be.

There seems to be no declaration of a principle adverse to slavery in the proclamation. It is a measure of war, and a measure of war of a very questionable kind.

As President Lincoln has twice appealed to the judgment of mankind in his proclamation, I venture to say I do not think it can or ought to satisfy the friends of abolition, who look for total and impartial freedom for the slave, and not for compromise on the slave owner. I am, &c.,
RUSSELL.

SOUTH CAROLINA.—The following is a copy of the telegram addressed to His Excellency B. F. Perry, Provisional Governor of South Carolina:

Your letter of the 4th of November is just now received. While much has been done in South Carolina that is conclusive to peace and restoration, the President still thinks it is impossible to anticipate events. He expects, therefore, that you will continue to exercise the duties heretofore devolved upon you as Provisional Governor of South Carolina until you shall be relieved by his order. He observes, with regret, that neither the Convention nor the State Legislature has pronounced the debts and obligations contracted in the name of the State for unconstitutional, and even rebellious purposes, to be void. He equally regrets that the State seems to decline the Constitutional Amendment of the Constitution of the United States abolishing slavery. I telegraphed to you yesterday as follows: "The President directs me to write to you that an early adoption of the Congressional Amendment of the Constitution of the United States abolishing slavery by the South Carolina Legislature, is deemed peculiarly important and especially desirable with reference to the general situation of the Union." I have now only to say, the President's opinions before expressed remain unchanged.
W. H. SEWARD.

THE DAVENPORTS.—The Davenport brothers arrived in Mallnox, from Paris, October 17th. They wrote to a Paris journal to say that they awaited the challenge of all Germany; and that, although the eighteen spirit meetings given by them in Paris were attended by only 1,395 persons, (of whom but 295 paid, producing a sum of 4,615 francs,) they are not disheartened, and have faith in their own star and the protecting influences of disembodied intelligences.

The Tomb of Mr Lincoln.

Mr William Saunders, Superintendent of the propagating garden at Washington, D C, has just returned to that city from a visit to Springfield, Illinois, where he had, by invitation of the Executive Committee and Councils of Springfield, been spending some time in choosing a site and making arrangements for the decoration of the ground upon which the monument of Abraham Lincoln is to be erected. The original Oak Ridge Cemetery was laid out by Mr Saunders in the year 1860, some two miles from Springfield. Thirty six acres have recently been added to the original tract.

With this addition the cemetery will contain seventy six acres. He speaks of the natural beauty of this place in the highest terms. The controversies in regard to where the remains shall finally be deposited have at length been amicably adjusted. Those who were anxious to have them interred in the Mather lot in the heart of the city of Springfield—were overruled, and that their views would be adopted—if we had a fault constructed, which was in readiness before the remains of the late President reached Illinois. Mrs Lincoln, however, was strenuously opposed to this idea, and even after the remains reached Springfield, while the matter remained unsettled at one time, it is said, thought of accepting a proposition to have the body of Mr Lincoln taken back to Washington and deposited in the vault beneath the dome of the Capitol, and exactly in the center of the building. Mr Saunders, on arriving at Springfield, found the City Council had appropriated the sum of fifteen thousand dollars for the erection of a temporary tomb, in which the remains of Mr Lincoln and his son should be deposited until the monument could be completed. They at present are in the public vault of the cemetery, and it is desirable that another receptacle should be provided as soon as possible.

The design for the temporary tomb was very chaste and beautiful, resembling a miniature chapel. The idea was abandoned, however as the cost of this merely temporary structure would be fifteen thousand dollars, and the committee have determined to build a substantial vault upon the ground selected for the site of the monument, in such a location as will not interfere with the general design of the monument, or obstruct the view. Mr. Saunders selected from the new tract of thirty-six acres a plot containing some seven acres, which he considers admirably adapted for the purpose, and upon which the vault will be built without delay. It occupies a commanding position, and while the lot will be visible from all parts of the cemetery, and located near its center, it will form a separate and distinct feature on account of its decorations.

The monument will be erected on a plateau, some four hundred feet in circumference, surrounded by carriage drives and walks leading to its base. The approach to this plateau will be bordered with evergreen trees and shrubbery. The lot will be separated by a low hedge from the main cemetery. At present the grounds are covered with forest trees. It is proposed to remove all the forest trees from the lot upon which the monument is to stand, and to substitute in their places only those that are evergreen. On the plateau very little shrubbery will be planted. The monument will probably be built of marble or of Joliet stone. The latter is found in large quantities in the State of Illinois.

The contrast between the pure white marble, or the delicate cream colored blue of the Joliet stone, and the rich dark evergreens, will be peculiarly pleasing and effective, and by adhering strictly to the rule of introducing nothing but evergreen trees and shrubbery within the enclosure, the same chaste and beautiful appearance will be maintained during the entire year. No active measures have been instituted, although several organizations have been formed for the purpose, to secure the necessary funds for the erection of this monument, and no special design has yet been determined upon. It is supposed that the sum of $200,000 will be required for this purpose. Of this amount about $50,000 have been received into the general fund.

HOW THE VALUE OF PETROLEUM WAS DISCOVERED.—The search for petroleum has become such an extensive interest, and its use has so suddenly and so generally become a matter of necessity, almost, in long households, that the story of the first discovery of its usefulness may be worth repeating.

In May, 1855, the country was horrified at the fearful accident at Norwalk, by which a passenger train from New York was thrown from an open drawbridge into the water, and more than fifty lives were lost. The conductor of the train was named Drake; and fearful of the consequences to himself for the negligence displayed in this disaster, he left the country for safety, and in his wanderings brought up finally in India. Here he found petroleum wells, and knowing the indications which marked petroleum in India existed also in Pennsylvania, from whence he came originally, he concluded to venture back and explore the region where these indications most prevailed. So he came to Titusville, in Pennsylvania.

Titusville was then a little hamlet, inhabited by a few hundred people engaged in lumbering. One firm, Brewer, Watson & Co., were doing an extensive sawmill business. Near their works a stream of water came out of a hill, and with the water came almost an equal quantity of this vile smelling product oil. They had found for the purpose of lubricating their machinery, this was fully as good as whale oil, and, had constructed a little tank to gather their supply. After thinking, but that its usefulness ended there. To them Drake applied, and in short order had a pumping well, paying the firm twelve and a half cents per gallon for the privilege of working on their ground. He worked diligently, and others took wells in the neighborhood, each paying as much as Drake's. The consequence was that the market was glutted and the oil was selling at eight cents per gallon, when it sold at all. This was location business for Mr. Drake, and he seemed to be cared nothing for the rest. The more he pumped the poorer by four and a half cents a gallon, he grew, and he gave it up.

But the article was now in the market and attracting attention in all directions. Knowledge of its usefulness was abroad and growing. In a little while, Drake relinquished his unprofitable well, the demand for oil began to increase and Messrs. Brewer, Watson & Co. concluded to work it themselves. Having something of a favorable opinion of the article, they naturally that in time it would be valuable; and for the purpose of securing the district in the neighborhood, they determined to buy the wild land of the regions round about. These lands were owned by the Pennsylvania Salt Company, an association formed for the purpose of boring for salt in the vicinity, as our late letter from Pithole stated. The greater part of the stock was owned in this city, and to this city an agent came and bought up for a few cents a share all the stock held here, and Brewster, Watson & Co. became the sole proprietors of the lands. Probably but few trades were ever made wherein such perfect satisfaction ensued on both sides.

The holders of the stock here were glad to get even a few cents for their stock, and the purchasers were satisfied to buy it for that, but when the Hartford owners of the Pennsylvania Salt Company's stock parted with their shares, they lost a fortune slip through their fingers. If they had held it until the oleaginous production was developed, it would have made every man of them rich.

Such is the plain, unvarnished tale of the origin of petroleum mining. The enterprise of one man, Drake, brought it into notice, but he, like many another before him, has seen the world made richer by his work, while he remained in poverty himself."

LIBERTY OF THE PRESS.—Though all the winds of doctrine were let loose to play upon the earth, so Truth be in the field, we do injuriously, by licensing and prohibiting, to misdoubt her strength. Let her and falsehood grapple, who ever knew Truth to be put to the worst in a free and open encounter? Her confuting is the best and surest suppressing. What a collusion is this when we are exhorted by the wise man to use diligence, "to seek for wisdom as for hidden treasures," early and late, and another order shall enjoin us to know nothing but by statute! When a man hath been laboring the hardest labor in the deep mines of knowledge, hath furnished out his findings in all their equipage, drawn forth his reasonings as it were a battle ranged, scattered and defeated all objections in his way, calls out his adversary into the plain, offers him the all vantage of wind and sun, as he pleases only that he may try the matter by dint of argument for his opponents then to skulk, to lay ambushments to keep a narrow bridge of licensing, where the challenger should pass, though it be valor enough in soldiership, is but weakness and cowardice in the wars of Truth. For who knows not that Truth is strong next to the Almighty? She needs no policies, nor stratagems nor licensings, to make her victorious—those are the shifts and defences that Error uses against her power: give her fair room and do not bind her when she sleeps.—John Milton

AN OLD RELIC.—The skeleton of a great grandson of St Louis has been discovered in leveling the site of the ancient abbey of Val Dieu at Longry, France, the said great grandson of Louis IX. having been no less a personage than Peter II., Duke of Alencon, surnamed "The Loyal." Near his tomb was found the bones of his daughter, Jane of Valois, who died in 1401, three years previous to her father.

SOUTH CAROLINA ELECTION.—About 15,000 votes were polled, and Orr (Union) beats Hampton (rebel Democrat) about 500.

THE SUFFRAGE QUESTION.—From the recent message of Gov Brownlow we extract the following passages which seem to embody his views upon the suffrage question. It is understood that President Johnson's opinions on this subject are very similar to those held by Gov Brownlow.

Who shall vote in Tennessee in future elections? Will you authorize emancipated slaves to vote? Will you invest them with all the rights of citizenship? Have you power to do it under the Constitution of the United States? There is a weighty question which will be brought before the country for an answer, and I conclude will shortly arise in Congress as to the protection of the freedmen of two Senators and eight Representatives from Tennessee who, in seeking admission to seats in Congress, while the people sending them have denied the emancipated slave the right of suffrage. I am free to admit that for the present, we have done enough for the negro, and although negro voting cannot suit my natural prejudices of caste, there is a class of them I would be willing to see vote at once. A large class ignorant, docile, easily led by designing men, and to unduly trusted with political power. I am not willing to see at the ballot box; but never can these have been faithful among the faithless, if rebels are to be restored to the right of elective franchise I must say let us no longer deny those political rights to the slaves. In my judgment a loyal negro is more eminently entitled to suffrage than the loyal white man.

I think that negro suffrage is bound to follow as one of the great results of the rebellion, that the time will come when it will be proper and right; but that the time has not yet come when the ballot box should be turned over to the emancipated slaves of this State and the thousands who would rush into Tennessee from the cotton States on this account. To the silly objection that negro suffrage implies social equality, I beg leave to respond that negroes, at one time or another, have voted in most of the Southern States, and yet they were in no way akin or to social equality with the whites. My recollection is that in every Southern State, except South Carolina the right of suffrage was originally exercised by free blacks. The original Constitutions of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia North Carolina and Georgia, members of the old Union make no mention of color in defining the qualifications of voters. Up to the time of the adoption of the amended Constitution, in 1835, negroes voted in Tennessee, and the leading politicians of the State importuned them for their votes. In Maryland they voted until 1810 and in North Carolina they voted as late as 1835. All this failed to advance the negroes in the scale of equality so foolishly talked of now and so offensively deprecated, and amalgamation was not so common in those days as it has become since.

MORE OF THE JEFF DAVIS TRIAL.—The Washington Republican notices at great length, a paragraph in the correspondence relating to the trial of Jeff Davis, and the opinion of Chief Justice Chase upon it. It gives some additional facts from which it appears that the Chief Justice came here from Ohio some time in August last, at the special invitation of the President, to consult on the general subject of trials for treason. Subsequently, about the 1st of October last, President Johnson addressed a letter to Chief Justice Chase informing him that it might become necessary for the government to prosecute some high crimes and misdemeanors committed against the United States within the district of Virginia, Chief Justice Chase's circuit, and inquiring whether the Circuit Court of the United States for that district is so far organized and in condition to exercise its functions that the Chief Justice or either of the Supreme Courts would hold a term of the Circuit Court during the Autumn or early winter, for the trial of cases. About the middle of October Chief Justice Chase replied to the President's letter. He positively stated that his Circuit Court for the District of Virginia, either to be presided over by himself or one of his Associates, would not hold a term during the Autumn or coming Winter.

He stated that the regular term, authorized by Congress, would commence this year on the 27th of November, the present month, only one week before the annual term of the Supreme Court, when all the Judges are required to be present, requiring but one week for the Circuit Court to sit, which, in the opinion of the Chief Justice, would be too short a term for the transaction of any important business, but the Chief Justice adds, that were the facts otherwise, he much doubts the propriety of holding Circuit Courts of the United States in States which have been declared by the executive and legislative departments of the National Government to be in rebellion and therefore subject to martial law before the complete restoration of their broken relations with the nation and the supercedure of the military by the civil administration, and that he would be unwilling to hold such Courts, in such States, within his circuit, which includes Virginia, until Congress shall have had an opportunity to consider and act on that subject. The Chief Justice expressed to the President the opinion that a civil Court in a district under martial law, can only act by the sanction and under the supervision of the military power, and he positively asserts that he could not think that it becomes the Justices of the Supreme Court to exercise jurisdiction under such condition.

THE PLATTA WAR—IMPORTANT VICTORY FOR THE ALLIED FORCES.—The bark Katherina Maude, which arrived at Boston November 5th, brought important advices from Buenos Ayres to September 23d—seven days later.

The Allied Powers of Brazil, Uruguay and the Argentine Confederation have gained an important victory in the capture of the besieged city of Uruguayana, with its entire garrison of five thousand Paraguayan soldiers. This siege was begun April 5th last. It appears that the Fourth division of the Paraguayan army, which is said to contain nearly a hundred thousand men in its ranks, pursued a small force of Brazilians to the interior of the province of Rio Grande, and were in consequence of some operations on the part of the allied forces, forced to a stand in the town of Uruguayana. The town was immediately invested by the allies. The besieged force built a wall about four miles in circumference around the town, and also ditched and otherwise fortified the position, which had the double disadvantage of being entirely separated from the basis of supplies and very inferior as a defensive position. About eight or ten guns were mounted by the defenders. The siege progressed with considerable vigor up to August 20th, when General Flores, the commander of the allied forces, demanded the surrender of the city and forces. The Paraguayan commander Antonio Estigarribia, declined to obey the summons. About this time or a little later affairs began to look more serious for the Paraguayans—reinforcements of Brazilians, under the Baron de Porto Alegre, having formed a junction with the army of General Flores, and completed the investment of the position. A dispute between the two allied commanders as to seniority in rank, and ten days of inactivity followed. The dispute and delay were finally settled by the arrival on the field of President Mitre, who assumed command in person, and the siege was pushed with vigor. The siege finally ended, as we are informed by the news by the Kutherine Maude in the surrender of the garrison after a siege of six weeks. The prisoners were summarily disposed of by being drafted into the allied armies to fight against their own countrymen. The victory caused great rejoicing at Buenos Ayres.

AMERICAN BILLIARD TABLES!

AND COMBINATION CUSHIONS

MESSRS. PHELAN & COLLENDER

WOULD RESPECTFULLY CALL THE ATTENTION of persons wanting Billiard Tables to the great superiority of the above tables, manufactured by them, and pronounced by all competent judges to be the best in the world.

At the Billiard Congress of 1864 a Committee of all the first class players in America was appointed to report on new inventions and improvements, and all matters for the Championship, and the best and only reliable tables.

These Billiard Tables have received unqualified approval of the best players and most competent judges, who have unanimously pronounced them unequaled for general excellence and durability.

Recent decisions patents and improvements in Billiard Tables have been granted to only The United States Patent Office, and we have lately obtained a Patent from the French Government, for our improvement in Ballard Combi ns.

We employ in the construction of our tables a variety of machines specially made for the purpose, by means of which we are enabled to insure a faithful and uniform and accurate delivery of the various Billiard materials we use.

Having an long experience and thorough knowledge of all the appliances of Billiards, and constantly on hand a large stock of the best and most thoroughly seasoned materials we are prepared to furnish everything required in the Billiard line with unprecedented Playing Qualities.

The combination Couch Billiard Player Mr Penger has published the following notice:

"NEW YORK, 26 August, 1861

"On the eve of leaving the United States I am happy to declare to all amateurs of Billiards that after a tour of eleven months through the principal cities I have been enabled to judge to a satisfactory manner of the superiority of the Billiard Tables manufactured by Phelan & Collender. The style of construction is so original, that I am happy to introduce their style of cushion into France. They have united in their manufacture of American Billiard Tables that elasticity of rebound so essential to fine cellone and beauty. For these reasons, I am happy to make this declaration.

"BERGER, (LAUDIUS),
Prof. of Billiards Paris."

Parties ordering from us will find our prices as low as good work can possibly be made for. We sell first class articles at a fair price, and will not make an inferior article at any price.

Orders by mail carefully and promptly executed. Illustrated Catalogues and Price Lists sent by mail. The Billiard Saloon Journal published in the interest of Billiards and containing details of all novelties, a complete record of Billiard news and everything of interest to amateurs of Billiards, sent free on application.
